OFFICE CHAIR

Seating is one of the most important aspects of office furnishing. Yet it is often considered as one of the least important features of an office. When at work in an office we spend the vast majority of our time sitting, either at a desk, a computer or even a reception, sitting for long periods of time. Especially on a chair that has not been designed with your body in mind, can cause premature back complaints and in extreme cases irreversible damage to the spine. A healthy office chair, one that is ergonomically designed can do so much for the user as well as for the company. An employee who is healthy takes less time off work and while at work is more productive. We realize the importance of ergonomics and user-friendly seating, which is reflected in our large and diverse range of seating products.
